Athol High School - HVAC Update

October 9, 2020

Provided below is our weekly update on the HVAC repairs for Athol High School.

We received the following communication from Jamrog HVAC on October 7, 2020:

Both Jamrog & CTC have been dealing with a handful of unanticipated circumstances that have pushed back the estimated completion date. The valves have not been going in as easy as expected – we had to drain the building heating system and replace defective shut-off valves that were not part of the quoted job in order to be able to move the project along.

Jamrog goes on to say that they expect the classrooms in our C Wing to be ready by Monday, October 19th. Our C Wing is where the majority of our classrooms are located. However, we will not be able to open the building for in-person learning until students can access all areas of the building. The positive news is that our A and B Wings are smaller spaces compared to C Wing.

With all that said, please plan to remain in Remote Learning for all students through at least Friday, October 23rd. Next Friday's update may provide more insight into the extent of time needed to complete the work in the remaining areas of the building.

Please remember, once we have clarity on when our students will be allowed to return to the building, we will release a more detailed schedule that will include an orientation day for each grade level. If you have any additional questions or concerns, please contact me through email at dking@arrsd.org or phone at (978) 249-2435.

Sincerely,
